Shareholders' meeting of Deutsche Telekom AG on May 15, 2008

... by car. The Kölnarena is located in the Köln-Deutz district and can easily be reached from the freeways in the greater Cologne area. Follow the signs for "Köln-Deutz" or "Köln-Zentrum" and the green "Koelnmesse" signs.

From the north (A1, A3, A59) and east (A4): At the "Köln-Ost" interchange (Autobahnkreuz) drive in the direction of Köln-Deutz and follow the signs to the P21 parking area. There will be a shuttle bus there all day long to take you to the Kölnarena and back free of charge.

From the south (A1, A3, A555): Drive to the Gremberg freeway interchange (Autobahnkreuz) (A4, A559), then continue on in the direction of Köln-Deutz via the eastern feeder road to the P1 parking area at the Kölnarena.

Please also watch for the current on-site signs and routing on the day of the shareholders' meeting. You should also note that in January 2008 Cologne introduced the low emission zone in which you may only drive if your vehicle has the appropriate emission sticker. For more information visit

... by public transportation. When arriving on "Deutsche Bahn" trains, take any S-Bahn (city train) or local train from the Cologne main train station for one stop to the Köln-Deutz train station. From there, you can reach the Kölnarena on foot in about 5 minutes.

The tram and bus stops "Bahnhof Deutz/Messe", "Bahnhof Deutz/Kölnarena" and "Deutz-Kalker Bad" are in the immediate vicinity of the Kölnarena and can be reached with trams 1, 3, 4 and 9 as well as buses 150, 153, and 156.

... by plane. The S-Bahn (city train) S13 departs from the Köln/Bonn airport to the Köln-Deutz train station once every 20 minutes. It is about a 12-minute ride. It takes about 15 minutes to travel by taxi to the Kölnarena and costs about EUR 25.
